Delivery according to the trade conditions of the Antiquarian Bookseller's Association of the Netherlands, Amsterdam depôtno. 212/1982, in which among other things is determined that the property right of the supplied goods remains with us up to full payment.

Prices are quoted in euro (€) to which postage and insurance will be added.

For clients within the European Community VAT (currently 6% on books) will be added to the prices. A VAT registered customer in another EC country will be zero-rated if the customers' VAT number is known to us.

We always enjoy meeting our customers personally in Vianen (only 15 km from Utrecht or 45 km from Amsterdam) from Monday through Friday, on Saturday visitors are welcome by appointment. We recommend though, that you call in advance, to be certain we will be there for your arrival.

- Wendell Phillips had sufficient income to abandon his law practice and devote his life to fighting for social justice. His career reached its apogee when he entered full swing into the abolitionist crusade. Red-headed, utterly fearless, Phillips is said to have possessed 'a mind like a Gatling gun' raking his hearers with his sallies. Unquestionable one of the greatest orators of his time, a man with a golden voice. To hear Phillips speak was to hear thunder threatening to darken a bright summer day. A great favorite of abolitionists everywhere. (Blockson, A commented bibliography of one hundred and one influential books by and about people of African descent (1556-1982), 36).*

Official document to grant freedom to a slave in Surinam. Dutch slave-trade was abolished in 1814 and slavery in 1863. The slaves in Surinam by paying redemption money, by themselves or by their masters, could get a conditional release. Mostly domestic slaves were manumissioned as a reward for their loyal services. The slaves were given names by the government, often they were named after the plantation were they worked. Reinhard Frans Cornelis van Lansberge was governor-general in Surinam from 1859 till 1867. - (Skilfully backed with very thin Japanese paper). - Very scarce 'document humain'. Alvan Stewart (1790-1849), a New York lawyer advocated the radical theory that the Constitution was fundamentally antislavery. He believed that the Fifth Amendment gave the federal government the power to end slavery anywhere in the nation. In 1845 Stewart tried to apply his theories to the New Jersey Constitution, but the supreme court of that state, in State v. Van Beuren and State v. Post, rejected his arguments (Finkelman p.151). - Sabin 91629.

William Wilberforce (1759-1833) had fought almost single-handed since 1780 as a member of the House of Commons for the abolition of the slave trade. In 1807 in Parliament passed his bill to abolish the slave trade. The successful conclusion followed one month after his death in 1833: the Slavery Abolition Act, by which all slaves were freed and slavery abolished in all the dominions of the British Crown.

Daniel Webster (1782-1852) was a leading orator, statesmen, and lawyer. In his famous 'Seventh of March' speech in 1850, he claimed that keeping the nation together was more important than the issue of slavery. He was widely praised by people in the South but condemned by his own party and Northern abolitionists (Rodriguez, Encycl. of world slavery, p.687). - (Margins stained).

'For broader and richer intelligence the work goes back centuries to the origin of the African slave-trade, sketches its horrible progress, its legal abolition by the British government, and the abolition of slavery under it and in other countries. Slavery is then followed to this continent, and traced down to the Revolution, and to the Abolition Act. Then opens the great conflict; its principles, objects, measures, and true spirit, all carefully outlined till slavery fell (Preface). - Work p.305.
