John Barrow (1764-1848) accompanied Lord Macartney on the first British embassy to China in 1792, later becoming his private secretary. Barrow's account of the expedition is considered a most valuable contribution to the literature of western embassies to China. Of special interest are the description of the Imperial Palace in Peking, and the palace in Jehol, and also the observations on the life and character of the Qianlong Emperor. The frontispiece by Thomas Hickey is a portrait of Van-ta-gin, the emperor's officer, who escorted Lord Macartney to the capital. He became a most congenial travelling companion, and learnt to shake hands and to eat with knife and fork. William Alexander, was also in the suite of Macartney's embassy, as artist. ' One of the best illustrated English travels on China. .. The strict exclusion of Europeans by the Chinese Emperors had left China very much terra incognita to the western world well into the nineteenth century' (Hill p.23) - (Two holes title-page rep.). - A fine clean copy with bright coloured plates after William Alexander. Abbey, Travel, 531; Tooley, Coloured plates, 84; Cordier, BS, 2388; Lust 366; Morrison I, 42; Hill 65; Thomson, The Exotic and the Beautiful, 279. – See illustr.

First edition. - Joachim Freiherr von Brenner-Felsach (1859-1927), österreichischer Asien-Reisender, durchquerte als erster die unabhängigen Batak-Länder auf Nord-Sumatra - ein Unternehmen, das allgemein für undurchführbar galt. .. Den Schwerpunkt seines Reisewerks machen die ethnographischen Schilderungen aus; seine Angaben über die Karo-Batak wurden als wertvoll herausgestellt. (Henze I p.350). On 18 March 1887 Brenner was travelling, together with H. von Mechel, from Deli to Lake Toba, on till then unknown roads. With a local boat he crossed the lake, and reached the sacred island of Samosir, which was venerated for centuries as the Batak ancestral homeland and kept hidden from foreign eyes. He left this 'Eldorado der See- und Menschenräuber' and reached, on the south shore of the lake, Lagubóti on 21 April 1887. - Early account of Lake Toba and the Batak of North Sumatra. - A very nice copy of a scarce work.

First edition. - 'Jan ten Brink is niet langer dan één jaar in Indië geweest en alleen te Batavia, behoudens dan een logeerpartij bij de familie Hofland, de eigenaren van de Pamanoean- en Tjiasemlanden (zo groot als de provincie Utrecht) in West-Java. Het verblijf op deze landen, waar hij op de gebruikelijke royale wijze gastvrijheid genoot, heeft op Ten Brink grote indruk gemaakt. Hij was verrukt en opgetogen ('een onafgebroken feestdag') door alles wat hij zag, de natuur, de feesten en het grand-seigneurale gebaar. .. In 1861 verscheen een herdenking van deze logeerpartij: Op de grenzen der Preanger' (Nieuwenhuys, Oost-Indische spiegel, p.205).

52 BROOKE, James. - MUNDY, Rodney. Narrative of events in Borneo and Celebes, down to the occupation of Labuan: from the journals of James Brooke. Together with a narrative of the operations of H.M.S. Iris. London, John Murray, 1848.
2 volumes. Original red embossed cloth gilt (rebacked with the original labels to spines laid on). With portrait (foxed) , 5 folding maps (1 coloured), and 17 plates (6 tinted lithographs; waterstained). XVII,385; XI,395 pp. € 1.295,00

First edition. - Mundy 'arrived off Singapore in July 1844 and for the next two years commanded the Iris on routine duties in the East India station. In 1846, under the overall command of Sir Thomas John Cochrane, Mundy took the Iris to Borneo to assist James Brooke in his campaign against pirates .. destroying the forts of Haji Saman, one of the leaders of the piratical faction at Brunei who had established himself in the Mambakut River. After taken possession of Labuan on 24.12.46, Mundy sailed for home in April 1847 (Howego II, p.425). This book provides a stirring account of both the destruction of pirates and of the enforced submission of the Sultan of Brunei, using journals and reminiscences of both Brooke and Mundy.

Its purpose was to gain additional information about the principal groups of islands in the Pacific and to augment the mass of scientific data acquired by Louis Duperrey. The Astrolabe sailed south, around the Cape of Good Hope, and arrived at Port Jackson. Proceeding to New Zealand, a careful survey was done of its coasts, especially the southern part of Cook Strait. Tonga and parts of the Fiji Archipelago were explored, then New Britain, New Guinea, Amboina, Tasmania, Vanikoro, Guam, and Java. The return home was by way of Mauritius and the Cape of Good Hope. Massive amounts of scientific materials were collected and published' (Hill 505). With beautiful plates after De Saison by J. Brodtmann. Dumont d'Urville was the discoverer of the Venus de Milo, now in the Louvre. He, his wife, and their only surviving son were killed in a railway accident near Paris on 8 May 1842. - A fine copy of the rare German edition.

XV,(1),222,CXXX,(72) pp. € 2.395,00

First edition. - Narrative of the expedition of Lord Amherst's embassy to China on the frigates Alceste and Lyra under Captain Murray Maxwell and Captain Basil Hall (1788-1844) in the years 1816-1817. They explored the hitherto little-known East China Sea and the Yellow Sea, and visited Korea and the Ryuku Archipelago. Except for some superficial exploration by Europeans it was the first time that detailed information was obtained about the Ryukus. The vocabulary is quite simple and meant for future voyagers in their intercourse with the natives. The fine coloured plates of scenery and costume were drawn by W. Havell after sketches made on the spot by the author and C.W. Brown, midshipman on the Alceste. 'His books are valuable not only for their vivid and trustworthy descriptions of travel, but for the information they contain as to the state of the Navy in the early part of last century' (Prideaux p.251). - Except some minor foxing a fine copy.

2 volumes. 4to. Original cloth, paper labels on spines (sl. rubbed). With map, coloured in outline, 10 steel-engraved plates and 25 wood-engravings in text. XLVII,631; VII,515 pp. € 685,00

First edition. - Posthumously published by the widow of the author. Reginald Heber was bishop of Calcutta, where he arrived in October 1823. In 1824 he crossed India to Bombay, via Dacca, Benares, Allahabad, Lucknow, Delhi, and Agra. He later visited Ceylon, and sailed to Madras and the south, where he died in April 1826. 'The main interest in Heber's journal is in his description of the people and their culture and in his observation of the great natural beauty of India's rivers and mountains' (Riddick 123). With folding Arabian inscription, 2 folding lithographed maps, and 17 lithographed plates (1 folding and 6 tinted). XII,227; XII,227,(1) pp. € 1.150,00

First edition; Volume III, part 1 (1854), missing as always. - Wolter Robert Baron van Hoëvell (1812-1879) was a minister of the church in Batavia. In 1847, about a year before his departure for the Netherlands, he made a trip which he reported on as Journey through Java, Madura, and Bali. He had started writing it while still in the Indies when his problems with its government were reached a critical stage. This explains the vehement tone of its first part. He forwarded the manuscript to P.J. Veth, an expert on the Indies in Holland. By the time part one was published, Van Hoëvell himself had already returned to Holland. There he continued writing about his trip. The work was first to consist of two, then three volumes. As it turns out, he only wrote two, which appeared respectively in 1849 and 1851. The account concerning his trip to Bali began to appear in 1854 but was never completed. Paul van't Veer is right in saying in a recent essay about Van Hoëvell that this travelogue is one of the best to have come out of the Indies. (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.65). Tiele 490; not in Cat. NHSM; Bastin-Brommer N404; Landwehr, Coloured plates, 312; Cat. KITLV p.11. - See illustration.

The anonymous publication of Images of Light and Shadow from Java's interior, first published in 1854, created a lot of bad feeling which impeded but could not prevent its appearance in the Netherlands. In the Netherlands Indies, the book was what we would now call a best seller. Junghuhn's book was prohibited in Austria and in several German states and principalities because of its alleged 'denigrations and vilifications of Christianity' (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.69). - (Last leaf, prospectus for De Dageraad, damaged with loss of text).

Text-volume and atlas-volume. 8vo and oblong 8vo. Original half cloth and half calf (foot of spine atlas-volume dam.). With 2 folding elevation maps and 38 lithographed plates containing many illustrations and profiles. X,518,(2) pp. € 2.950,00

First edition. - Franz Wilhelm Junghuhn (1809-1864) was a German geographer and naturalist and is considered to be the unsurpassed master of scientific research and reproduction of Java. He joined the Netherlands Indies Army as a medical officer in 1834. In 1845 he became a member of the Natural Sciences Commission. He made numerous excursions in Java, climbed all mountains and inspected many craters. The first result of all his investigations is this monumental work, a semi-autobiography, in which his description of the flora is still unsurpassed. Also included the account of his arrival in the Netherlands and his voyage to the Dutch East Indies. His great example was Alexander von Humboldt's description of America. The extraordinary plates, lithographed by E. Baensch, depict situation-sketches and profiles of Javanese volcanoes. - (One plate cut short with some loss of text; text-volume foxed). - Extremely rare complete set of this innovative work.

The Java War was fought in Java between 1825 and 1830. It started as a rebellion led by the illustrious Prince Diponegoro. The trigger was the Dutch decision to build a road across a piece of his property that contained his own parent's tomb. Prince Diponegoro started a fierce guerilla war but had difficulties in maintaining the size of his troops. It is estimated that 200.000 died over the course of the conflict, 8000 being Dutch. The rebellion finally ended in 1830, after Prince Diponegoro was tricked into entering Dutch custody near Magelang, believing he was there for negotiations for a possible cease-fire, and exiled to Manado on the island of Sulawesi. 'The substantial work by P.J.F. Louw and E.S. de Klerck .. presents much more than merely military history; various aspects of the history of the Dutch on Java are dealt with fully and thoroughly' (Coolhaas p.95). - Rare standard work. *Cat. Thomas Maurice (1754-1824) published numerous works on the religion of India. After he had completed his extensive "Indian Antiquities" he traced Indian history back to its classical origins. Volume I mainly gives ancient astronomical details from the Hindoo, Hebraic, Phoenician, Egyptian and Greek systems, covering the period between the creation and the flood. Volume II contains the Sanskrit and classical history of India. The imaginative curious plates are showing the Indian Deitees (incarnations of Veeshnu, Creeshna etc.) but also the ancient zodiac from Egypt, oriental zodiac, the 28 Hindoo lunar mansions. The plates are mainly facsimiles of the mythological designs and as Maurice says in his advertisement "Absurd as some of them may appear to an European eye, it appeared still more absurd attempt to make any alterations in them". - (Some staining).

First published in 1897. - In his book Impressions of a newcomer it was obvious Van Maurik had appropriated all the Indies prejudices during his brief stay there: the imperfect speech of Eurasians amused him, and he portrayed the native Indonesians as a childlike people. He repeated all the club and barroom stories and larded them with his own banal humor. ... No wonder then that Justus van Maurik's trip had been a great succes about which people talked for years (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.135). *Buur, Persoonlijke documenten, 459; Cat. First published in 1817; the 3rd edition is the first edition with the map. - 'The Alceste and the Lyra conveyed Lord Amherst's embassy to China, which was the second attempt by the British to open trade with China, after the first effort by Lord Macartney. The Alceste reached Rio de Janeiro in 1816, and then proceeded to the Cape of Good Hope. After a short visit there, Batavia was touched at in order to deliver dispatches for the evacuation of the country and reinstatement of Dutch control, after which the Alceste continued on to China. While the matters of the embassy were proceeding, the ships sailed on an expedition for the survey and exploration of the west coast of Korea and the Ryukyu Islands. In the course of this work a long visit was made to Okinawa. The people were very hospitable to the sailors and gave them a kindly, though careful, reception. On the return voyage, after taking Lord Amherst on board at Macao, Manilla was visited, and then, in Gaspar Strait off the coast of Sumatra, the Alceste struck a submerged reef and became a total loss. The crew and passengers reached the small adjacent island of Pulo Leat safely. Lord Amherst proceeded to Batavia to fetch help while the sailors fortified their island retreat, named Fort Maxwell after their captain. A long and vivid account is given of their experiences, of how they were attacked by Malay pirates, and of their final rescue. On their return voyage, St. Helena was visited, and an interesting account is given of an interview with Napoleon. Dr. McLeod, the author of this account, was ship's surgeon on board the Alceste' (Hill p.407). - A fine copy.

Aquatint plate after H.P. Oosterhuis by J.A. Lutz. Ca. 27,5 x 41 cm. € 1.250,00

Proof-plate. - After the Dutch action against Palembang in 1821, two aquatints were made by H.P. Oosterhuis (the battle on the river and the embarking of Sultan Machmoed Badaroedin), accompanied by a leaf of letterpress. 'No date of publication is indicated, and there is no evidence that the work was published since only proof plates are known. They must have been executed in about 1822 or 1823, and rank among the rarest of nineteenth century prints of Indonesia, an additional degree of rarity arising from the fact that they are aquatints, a medium of illustration seldom used by early nineteenth century Dutch engravers' (Bastin-Brommer N 177). - The beautiful aquatint plate depicts the embarking of Sultan Machmoed Badaroedin on H.M.S. Johanna on the river Sousang, Sumatra, and the Dutch fleet with a detailed picture of the buildings along the coast. - Extremely rare. - See illustration.

2 volumes. Contemporary half calf, with red morocco title-labels to spines. With 4 folding engraved maps. 6,316; 304 pp.

€ 875,00

First French edition. - An excellent account of Ceylon. - The British succeeded the Dutch in Ceylon in 1796, Captain Robert Percival arrived with the British forces in 1797 and spent three years in Sri Lanka. He was, as he writes, "induced by curiosity" because "the accounts hitherto published of this island had been extremely imperfect; as the watchful jealousy of the Dutch both excluded the researches of strangers, and prevented their own people from publishing any observations.. ". He had a pronounced hatred of the cruelty of Dutch rule. In 1800 he joined General Macdowal's embassy to the court of Candy and gives a valuable report of this happening. In his description of pearl fishery he brings to life the extravaganza, the customs and superstitions of the fisherman and the dangers of the deep. - Some light foxing otherwise fine.

274 RAFFLES, Thomas Stamford. The history of Java. London, Black, Parbury, and Allen, and John Murray, 1817. 2 volumes. 4to. Modern blind-tooled half calf. With 2 maps (one large folding of Java), 10 hand-coloured plates and 53 etched or aquatint plates, and some engraved vignettes. XLVIII,479; VIII,288,(3),CCLX pp. € 6.250,00

First edition. - Raffles (1781-1826) 'was interested in every aspect of his subject, and devotes whole sections to Javan ethics, literature, poetry, music, and musical instruments, drama, games of skill and methods of hunting, besides the more ordinary matters of interest population, natural history, religion, antiquities, and the military system .. The history of Java stands very high in its own class, and the aquatint plates are full of interest' (Prideaux p.252-253). 'In terms of the pictorial depiction of Javanese costume and topography the importance of the History of Java can hardly be exaggerated .. The marriage of a scientifically original text with beautiful illustrations by an accomplished aquatint engraver resulted in a book about Indonesia of outstanding quality; indeed, a masterpiece' (Bastin-Brommer p.6-7). The ten coloured aquatints, though unsigned are by William Daniell, illustrate Javanese life and costume, and the Papuan boy who accompanied Raffles to England in 1816. The plate of the Borobudur is one of the first depictions of the monument. 'An influential work valued for the author's firsthand observations on the customs and condition of the Javanese under his administration as Governor-General during the British occupation of the Dutch East Indies (1811-1815)' (Von Hünersdorff/Hasenkamp p.1213). - A fine copy.

Second and best edition. - Sir Spenser St. John (1825-1910) was appointed private secretary to Sir James Brooke in 1848, who was at that time commissioner and governor of Labuan, a post to which St. John succeeded temporarily in 1851-1855. Appointed in 1856 British consul-general at Brunei, he explored the country round the capital and penetrated the interior of Borneo farther than any previous traveller. He published his full and accurate journals, supplemented by other visitors' testimonies, in two well-written and beautifully illustrated volumes (DNB). Including extensive notes on the Chinese in North Borneo. - Fine.

When the Dutch returned to Indonesia after the Napoleonic War, the government quickly sponsored scientific expeditions to Java, and shortly thereafter, formed the Natural History Commissions, which through 1850, extended the explorations to Sumatra and Borneo. The Verhandelingen, sponsored by the state and published in 29 parts, includes beautiful hand-coloured plates, with painstaking attention to detail, depicting ethnographic and topographic scenes, and mammals, birds, reptiles, fish, insects and plants after drawings by talented artist as P. van Oort, W.J. Gordon, A.J. Bik, A.S. Mulder, Tsing Wang Ke and Q.M.R. Ver Huell. The whole work was placed under the direction of C.G.C. Reinwardt, the first director of the Botanical Gardens at Bogor, C.L. Blume, director of the Rijks Herbarium Leiden, J. van der Hoeven, professor of zoology Leiden, and general editor C.J. Temminck, director of the Rijksmuseum van Natuurlijke Historie Leiden. J.A. Susanna, administrator of the Rijksmuseum van Natuurlijke Historie, was entrusted with the administrative side of the publication.

Vol.I: The zoology volume, chiefly written by S. Müller and H. Schlegel - with lithographed title-page and 100 plates (81 hand-coloured) - mammalia, aves, reptilia, pisces and insecta.

Vol.II: The botanical volume, written by P.W. Korthals - with lithographed title and 70 plates (66 hand-coloured).

Vol.III: The ethnographical volume, written by S. Müller, in two volumes - with lithographed title-page and 89 plates (22 hand-coloured) - New Guinea, Celebes, Timor, Borneo, Java, Sumatra. - (A substitute pl. 14A was printed which is almost identical to pl. 14). - Some 'are among the finest ethnographical and topographical plates of Indonesia' (Bastin-Brommer p.17).

- Only 250 copies printed. - A desirable copy of a monumental folio work.

XV,413; 348 pp. € 4,250,00

Original edition. - The author arrived at the Cape on the 25th of December 1802. An English fleet of ten ships and a Dutch fleet of seven ships were in Table Bay awaiting the 1st of January, when the colony was to be handed back to the Dutch. The ample account of the Cape is followed by a large description of Mauritius, Batavia (Jakarta), Timor and Java. At the end a French-Malay dictionary, a description of Réunion, the battle of Colombo of 1796, and notes on the Dutch East India Company (VOC) are added. The three plates of Batavia, representing views of the castle and of the Dutch church, are after Rach. - (With small library stamp of a Jesuit college of Marseille on title-pages; age-browned). Van der Tuuk (1824-1894) had devoted about the last twenty years of his life to the compilation of this monumental dictionary. Living on Bali from 1870 onwards the compilation of a Kawi-Balinese dictionary grew into a colossal, seemingly endless work. New information kept reaching him nearly every day. His dictionary never seemed to get finished ('such a mess of variants, enough to drive you mad; I am half crazy with misery', he wrote in August of 1888 (see Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.102). The dictionary was published after his death by J.L. Brandes and D.A. Rinkes. 'Its more than 3600 pages testify to Van der Tuuk's unsurpassed familiarity with nearly all sections of Old Javanese literature' (Uhlenbeck, A critical survey of the studies on the languages of Java and Madura, p.110). - A good copy of an extremely rare book.

€ 6.950,00

Van de Velde (1818-1898) was trained as a naval officer at the Koninklijk Instituut voor de Marine, where he received drawing lessons from Petrus Johannes Schotel (1808-1865), one of the best known Dutch naval artists of the 19th century. The drawings for this publication were made by Van de Velde during the period when he was a midshipsman aboard the corvet ZM Corvet (captain-lieutenant A.C. Edeling) between April 1838 and October 1839, and between the later date and September 1841, when he was working at Batavia for the Commission for the improvement of maps and charts of Indonesia. The drawings were transferred on stone by Paulus Lauters, one of the most renowned of Belgian lithographers. They represent views in Java (including several of Batavia), Timor, the Moluccas, Celebes, Borneo and Sumatra. - (Some light staining as usual). - A fine copy.

'The first volume of the large, 'official' dictionary by H. von de Wall had appeared (1872), but, owing to his death in 1873 only one letter reached the press in this original, very prolix edition. Van der Tuuk finally curtailed and pruned the material drastically and published it in three volumes, 'omitting al superfluities' (1877-84). This occasioned the criticisms by the author's son' (Teeuw p.24).

2 volumes. Original pictorial cloth gilt (rebacked with the original spines laid down). With 2 maps (1 folding and coloured) 12 wood-engraved plates and 41 wood-engravings. XXIV,528; X,552 pp. € 450,00

Wallace's (1823-1913) second, longest, and most significant expedition was to the relatively underexplored Malay Archipelago between 1854 and 1862. His journey took him first to Singapore and then Borneo, where he hunted and observed the orangutan (1855-1856). Heading east to the Moluccas group, he explored Amboyna and Ternate during 1857 and 1858. In 1858 Wallace traveled to Lombok and Bali in the Timor group, recognizing this group of islands as the boundary between the two primary continental influences dividing the natural history of the archipelago, the Indian sub-continent in the northwest, and Australia in the southeast. The remaining three years of Wallace's travels (1859-1862) took him east to the Papuan group, where he explored Macassar, the Aru Islands (where he studied the bird of paradise) then New Guinea. This was interspersed with return visits west to Ternate and Amboyna, and the Celebes group for the first time. He visited Sumatra before returning to England via Singapore (Speake, Encyclopedia, p.1264). This is a magnificent combination of interesting sketches of travel and vivid pictures of natural history.

XIV,354; VIII,347 pp. € 1.795,00

First edition. - James Welsh (1775-1861) was colonel of the Madras establishment. He obtained a commission as ensign in the army of the East India Company on 22 May 1790, and arrived at Madras on 23 January 1791. He married at Calcutta, in 1794, a daughter of Francis Light, first governor of Prince of Wales Island, Penang, by whom he had a numerous family (DNB). Although this book deals primarily with India, Welsh also visited Madeira, Ceylon, Canton, Prince of Wales Island (Penang), Malacca, and the Cape of Good Hope. The beautiful aquatints are by R. Havell, R.G. Reeve, F.C. Lewis, and others. 'Welsh's turgidly written memoirs methodically trace nearly every step of the imposition of British control over South India' (Riddick 66). 'An unusual feature is the use of aquatint for the maps and plans, plan of Punalla in particular, being almost entirely aquatint used as contour shading' (Abbey). - With armorial bookplate. - A very fine copy.
