The first book in English treating of the Persian ruler Nadir Shah

30 FRASER, James. The history of Nadir Shah, formerly called Thamas Kuli Khan, the present Emperor of Persia. To which is prefix'd A short history of the Moghol Emperors. At the end is inserted, A catalogue of about two hundred manuscripts in the Persic and other Oriental languages, collected in the East. Second edition. London printed for A. Millar, 1742.

Contemporary speckled calf, with red morocco title label on spine. With folding portrait frontispiece by J. Hullett and folding map of the Moghul empire and part of Tartary. VI, 234, (6); 40 pp. € 1100,00 Second edition; first edition also published in London in 1742. - Nadir Shah, born to a peasant family in 1688, was captured by Uzbek tribesmen and joined a band of brigands while still a child. He rose to become a powerful military leader of the Afshar tribe and, when the Afghans invaded Persia in 1719, he supported the Safavid ruler Tahmasp II. He became the power behind the throne and eventually deposed the Shah in 1732. In 1738 Nadir Shah invaded India, sacking Lahore and Delhi and carrying back to Iran vast hordes of treasure including the Peacock Throne and the Koh-i-Noor diamond as well as a large quantity of the finest manuscripts.

He was known variously as The Scourge of God the Napoleon of Persia and the Second Alexander. This account of Nadir Shah was written by his contemporary, James Fraser, East India Company servant and collector of Oriental manuscripts. Fraser was in India when Nadir Shah invaded and provides a first-hand account of contemporary events as well as translations from the Persian of historical texts and original documents. Fraser's collection of some two hundred Oriental manuscripts was the first collection of that kind ever brought to Europe and remains intact today in the Bodleian Library. The second part of this book is one of the earliest western catalogues of oriental manuscripts.

The first book in English treating of the Persian ruler Nadir Shah, the source of God. It is important not only as a first-hand contribution to the history of contemporary events, but also for the number of original documents which it alone has preserved (DNB). Fraser was resident at Surat from 1730-40 and then returned as factor for the East India Company, 1743-9 (Blackmer 629).

Wilson p.75.

Sm. 8vo. Later calf, spine lettered in gilt. With engraved title-vignette, folding engraved map and 2 folding engraved plates. 72,(8) pp. € 1.450,00

Firts Dutch edition, issued in Pieter van der Aa's collection of voyages; first published in English by George Best A true discours of the late voyage of discovery, for the finding of a passage to Cathaya, by the northwest. London, 1578. George Best, served as an officer on all three of Frobisher's Arctic expeditions. - Three voyages of Martin Frobisher (ca. 1535 - 1594), in search of a Northwest passage to China in 1576 -1578. The first voyage was thought to have discovered gold, the second brought back tons of worthless ore, and the third was probably the largest Arctic expedition prior to the 20th century. Setting out in 1578 with fifteen ships and 400 men intended to colonize Baffin Island and set up winter mining operations. Frobisher oversaw much loss and no successes. Geographically the voyage made new inroads into what Queen Ekizabeth I called Meta Incognita, but in other respects all three were abysmal failures (Stam, Books on ice, p.10). Frobisher was the first English explorer who initiated the search for the Northwest passage and can be regarded as the leader of English exploration in the 16th century. - A fine copy. Tiele 8; Cat. NHSM I, p.107; Howgego F80-81; European Americana V, p.73.

First Dutch edition, first published in English in London in 1634 A relation of some years travaile, begunne anno 1626. Into Afrique and the Greater Asia. - 'In 1627 Herbert travelled to Persia as a member of the entourage of Sir Dodmore Cotton, accompanied by Sir Robert Sherley. Cottton had been appointed ambassador to Persia as a result of the return of Robert Sherley in 1623. The embassy had produced two rival ambassadors, Sherley and Nagd Ali Beg (Nogdi Ali Beg), each of whom had denounced the other as an imposter. James I therefore decided to send Cotton as his ambassador to Persia to clarify these matters, accompanied by the two interested parties, Sherley and Ali Beg. Thomas Herbert was to accompany the mission. Sailing via the Cape of Good Hope, Madagascar and Goa, the party landed at Surat on 27.11.27. There Ali Beg deliberately took on overdose of opium and killed himself .. Herbert sailed on 18.12.27 for Persia and landed at Gombroon .. they continued to Teheran, and then to Qazvin where both Robert Sherley and Cotton died of dysentery. Herbert, however, continued his travels, visiting Lar, Shiraz, Esfahan, Tehran, Qum, Kashan and eventually returning to Gombroon. From there he made his way to Surat (December 1628), and in April 1629 sailed for London, visiting en route Ceylon, the Coromandel coast, Mauritius and St. Helena' (Howgego p.503/504). Herbert 'gives a description of Persian coffee customs which is probably the earliest in English language' (Hünersdorff/Hasenkamp p.686). Pages 188--192 contain the Ontdeckingh van America door Madoc ap Owen Gwyneth. He was a 12th-century apocryphal Welsh voyager (Howgego M12). - A very fine copy of the earliest significant English travel account of the Near East.

First Dutch edition; first English edition of Journal of a voyage for the discovery of a North-West passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific. London, 1812). - By August 1, 1819, Sir William Edward Parry (1790-1855) had managed to sail westward completely through Lancaster Sound, establishing that it was actually a strait. He then made the European discovery of Barrow Street, which he named after Sir John Barrow. Continuing westward, he reached the south coast of a large island he named Melville Island after Lord Melville. Parry and his men had sailed west of the 110th meridian of longitude, half the distance of the Northwest Passage, and thereby won a prize of £ 5.000, which Parliament had offered as an incentive for the discovery of the Northwest Passage. After being frozen in for ten months, the ships were released on August 10, 1820, but the ice prevented further progress westward, and Parry returned to England. Parry's famous first journal gives a full account of the voyage and discoveries. - A fine copy of the rare Dutch edition.

€ 1.750,00

First German edition. - First, and still the best, scientific description of Atacama, Chili. R.A. Philippi (1808-1904), a German-Chilean naturalist, visited the Atacama Desert in 1853-1854, travelled extensively in Chili between 1850 and 1883, and occupied the Chair of Natural History at Santiago. His son, Friedrich Philippi, carried on his work in the Atacama in 1885. His book offers a travel account, followed by descriptive sections, including a Flora Atacamensis listing the more than 400 species he had found in the area, many of them not described before. With fine plates depicting views and natural history subjects (fossils, birds, rodents, lizards, shells and plantes). Philippi brought to Santiago the first reliable map of the region and a wealth of scientific information. He is now regarded as one of the founding fathers of scientific research in Chile (Howgego IV, p.723).

'Philippi gehört zu den bedeutendsten Naturforschern, die im 19. Jahrhundert in Chili tätig waren. Verdienstvolle Arbeit leistete er auf den Gebieten von Botanik und Zoologie. John Brown was committed to jail and hanged 'for feloniously conspiring with each other, and other persons unknown, to make an abolition insurrection and open war against the Commonwealth of Virginia' and for the additional crimes of murder and 'conspiring with slaves to rebel and to make insurrection'. John Brown was the most passionate and violent American abolitionist of his time. This book reflects the author's commitment to the abolitionist cause and his deep admiration of Brown's insurrectionary efforts on behalf of Southern slaves. - (Waterstained throughout).

First Dutch edition after the German translation of the the English edition A voyage of discovery made .. in his majesty's ships Isabella and Alexander, for the purpose of exploring Baffin's Bay, and inquiring into the probability of a north-west passage. London, 1819; warranted by the publisher on half-title in manuscript. - A famous, even notorious, voyage, led by Captain John Ross. As his lieutenants, Ross had aboard his nephew James Clark Ross, William Parry, and Edwin Sabone, all of future fame as explorers. Ross attempted to proceed westward through Lancaster Sound, but presumably deceived by a mirage, he described the passage as barred by a range of mountains, which he named the Croker Mountains, despite the disbelief of his colleagues (Hill 1488). The controversy had discredited Ross in the eyes of the Admiralty and for the next ten years he received no further commissions for exploratory voyages (Howgego II, R28). Ross began a new era in Arctic research (Stam, Books on ice, p.21). - (Age-browned). - Very rare. Cat. NHSM I, p.304; not in Tiele; Sabin 73380; Arctic Bibl. 14873.

First Dutch edition; first published in London in 1835 Narrative of a second voyage in search of a north-west passage. - Sir John Ross (1777-1856) set out in 1826 with the small paddle-steamer the Victory, after the failure of his voyage in 1821. He spent the years 1829-1833 in the far northwest. He successfully weathered repeated Arctic winters and systematically accumulated a wealth of scientific data and reached the North Magnetic Pole in 1831. The Victory was crushed in the ice and Ross and his men were rescued by a whaler, the Isabella, in August 1833 at Lancaster Sound, after a terrible trek South. The introduction contains a chronological summary of previous explorations in search of a Northwest Passage. - (Some foxing; written number on title-pages). - Very rare.

The Battle of Beachy Head (Bataille de Béziers, in Dutch named Battle of Bevesier) was a naval battle near Beachy Head in southern England, fought on July 10, 1690 as part of the Nine Years' War. The Anglo-Dutch Allied fleet was under the command of the English Admiral Arthur Torrington, the French fleet led by Anne de Tourville. The battle ended in a great French victory over their English and Dutch opponents. The Dutch squadron led by the Zeeland admiral Cornelis Evertsen de Jongste was virtually destroyed.

101 SHIPWRECK OF THE ADDER. VERSLAG aan den koning van het onderzoek naar de vermoedelijke oorzaken waaraan de zeeramp van ZR.MS. Rammonitor 'Adder' moet worden toegeschreven.

Uitgebragt door de commissie, benoemd bij 's konings besluit van 21 Julij 1882. 's Gravenhage, Algemeene Landsdrukkerij, 1882.

Large 8vo. Original printed boards. With folding plate depicting the Adder and folding plate depicting the probable location of the wreck. II, 181 pp. € 375,00

The Adder was a Dutch ram monitor who sank on the North Sea off the coast of Scheveningen on Wednesday evening 5 July 1882. All 66 people on board were killed. The wreck was never recovered.

There was a lot of criticism because it was delayed until Saturday before sending a ship to locate the Adder, while the monitor was expected to be in Hellevoetsluis on Wednesday afternoon. This exceptionally slow course of action on the part of the Navy Department has been heavily criticized. A monitor was a relatively small warship which was neither fast nor strongly armored but carried disproportionately large guns. They were designed for shallow waters and served as coastal ships and used by some navies from the 1860s.

Added 11 newspaper clippings from 1882-1883 on the shipwreck, including 1 of the Bataviaasch Handelsblad.

Also the loss of the Hindostan storeship, commanded by Captain J. Le Gros. London, Thomas Tegg, (1809).

€ 395,00

First published in 1676; large paper copy. - Wouter Schouten (1638-1704) spent 7 years as a physician in the service of the VOC in the East 1658-1665. He was an observant traveller who explored inland into environs of nearly every port-of-call. His travel-account stayed very popular for a long time because of his ample and vivid descriptions of the countries, the different peoples and anything of note concerning the animals, plants, etc. of Java, Amboyna, Ternate, Celebes, Cape of Good Hope, coast of Coromandel, Malabar, Persia, Arabia, Ceylon, etc. Because of the bad weather the fleet arrived on the return voyage in Bergen (Norway), where Schouten eyewitnessed the attack by the English in 1665. - (Missing pp.291/292; portrait and 15 plates; last pp. stained).
