€ 32.500,00

First Dutch edition of the first European atlas of China. - 'The first of the seventeen maps is a map of the entire Chinese empire, followed by a general description of China and its inhabitants. Individual maps of Ming China's fifteen provinces follow, each accompanied by detailed descriptions. Finally there is a map and a brief description of Japan. These maps were the most accurate maps available during the century, and together with Martini's provincial descriptions, the atlas provided more geographical information about China than became available during the following two centuries. Martini's maps were extremely valuable in presenting Europe with an accurate geographic picture of the Middle Kingdom' (Löwendahl, Sino-Western relations, 116). This atlas was included as volume six in Blaeu's magnificent Theatrum orbis terrarum. - (Some pages slightly wrinkled; engraved titel-page and the general map Of China and Japan cut short; small library stamp on title-page). - A fine coloured copy.

With 4 title-pages printed in red and black with title-vignettes, 5 engraved vignettes, 23 engraved plates (10 folding) and 42 double-page or folding engraved maps.

First edition of the 'Bible of European sinophilia'. - The most important and comprehensive work on China published up to that time. Du Halde, a Parisian Jesuit, collected and edited the letters of the Jesuit missionaries for this work. The fine plates depict all aspects of China and Chinese life including flora and fauna, engineering, astronomy, etc. The folio edition includes many important maps not previously published before, the maps are the most accurate of China available in Europe at the time. They are by Jean Baptiste Bourguignon d'Anville (1697-1782), the 'finest cartographer of his time'. - 'Historically, this work must be regarded as monumental. Its strenght lies in the vast amount and variety of interesting details, which must have given its readers an impression of the magnificence of the Chinese empire and the wide range of achievements of the Chinese people in literature, science, philosophy and art' (Löwendahl, Sino-Western relations, 394). The first French folio edition is the most desirable and significant. - Some marginal waterstaining and age-browning otherwise a very good copy of a cornerstone of any collection of books on China.

Jean le Clerc, of Joannes Clericus, stamde uit een Hugenoofs geslacht. Hij studeerde filosofie, Hebreeuws en theologie in Geneve en maakte verschillende reizen door Europa. Tegenzin tegen de Calvinistische orthodoxie in zijn woonplaats en onder de invloed van de werken van Grotius, Episcopus, Van Limborch en andere heterodoxe schrijvers deed hem verhuizen naar Amsterdam, waar hij zich aansloot bij de Remonstrantse partij. Hij bleef de rest van zijn leven in Amsterdam als 'polyhistoricus', hoogleraar filosofie en Hebreeuws aan het Remonstrants Seminarium, sinds 1712 opvolger van Van Limborch als hoogleraar kerkgeschiedenis. Hij onderhield relaties met o.a. John Locke, op wie hij een uitvoerige Eloge historique schreef (1705), was uitgever van de beroemde Bibliotheque universelle et historique (voortgezet als Bibliotheque choisie en Bibliotheque ancienne et moderne) en van de werken van Erasmus, Grotius, en anderen. Eerder (1728) uitgegeven in het Frans als Histoire des Provinces-Unies des Pays-Bas. First edition. - This book is claimed to be translated from the papers of an English nobleman but according to Tiele it was composed by G. Broekhuizen. 'G. van Broekhuizen, a seventeenth-century translator and publisher from Amsterdam, had read enough travel accounts to be able to compose one himself. Edward Melton's voyage to Egypt, the West Indies, Persia, Turkey, The East Indies and neighbouring regions is pure fiction, but van Broekhuizen inserted enough curiosities to make his book interesting' (Koster, To Hellen's noble land, 32). Muller, at the other hand states 'this description is rendered still more important by the circumstance, that Melton was at New-York in 1668, in the height of the quarrel between England and Holland on the possession of the country, so that he uses the names New York and New-Amsterdam indiscriminately'. 'Exactly who he was, whether he really existed, or if Melton was his real name remains an unsettled problem' (Howgego p.701). The first part is dealing with Egypt. A very detailed description is given in the second part of New Netherland, based on Adriaen van der Donck and Arnoldus Montanus, Virginia, Florida, Cuba, Haiti, Panama and Jamaica; also relating to the buccaneers in the West Indies. The third part is dealing with Persia and Turkey, the fourth with Asia and South Africa. Van Broekhuizen showed a morbid interest in oriental tortures, which he described in detail and of which Jan Luyken presented some vivid illustrations. 'Several of the plates are by the celebrated Jan Luyken and are among his best productions' (Asher 16).

Amsterdam, Jacob Meurs, 1669.

Folio. Contemporary blind-tooled calf, spine with raised bands. With title-page printed in red and black, fine engraved allegorical frontispiece, large folding map, 24 folding or double-page plates (some margins restored; one plate damaged on the fold) and 71 half-page engravings in the text. (8),456,(16) pp. € 7.500,00

First and only Dutch edition. - A sumptuously illustrated account of the two Dutch missions of 1649 and 1661 to the shogun's court. After the expulsion of all foreigners from Japan, the Dutch were allowed to settle on the man-made island of Deshima in the bay of Nagasaki. The Dutch trading center there served not only commercial ends, but it was also Japan's window on the western world. In addition, it provided other countries with an avenue of approach to Japan. Thus, from 1637 to 1854, the Dutch alone were able to retain their trading rights. During this period they were able to exercise their mediating functions for other nations, as they did in preparing the way for America's admiral Perry.

'Some new information along with a lot of old material about Japan became available in 1669 with the publication of Montanus' Gedenkwaardige gesantschappen.

Ostensibly a description of several VOC embassies to the shogun's court after 1640, it is in fact an encyclopedia of things Japanese' (Lach, Asia in the making of Europe, III, p.488). With o.a. fine large views of Tokyo, Osaka and Kyoto. Including also a description of Batavia with double-page plan after Janssonius (see Brommer, Batavia, Bat K15). - Some blank margins restored, with strong impressions of the plates. - Fine.

Published in the same year as the first edition; with bookplate of J.S.W.S. Erle Drax. - Mungo Park (1771-1806) was the first European to reach the well-nigh fabulous waters of the Niger. He followed the river almost to the Senegal valley. He finally reached Gambia after a lengthy return journey. His journal included a detailed description of travel conditions, the nature of the area, rivers, and customs of various tribes. 'Park's Travels had an immediate success and was translated into most European languages. It has become a classic of travel literature, and its scientific observations on the botany and meteorology of the region, and on the social and domestic life of the negroes, have remained of lasting value. Park's career was short, but he made the first great practical advance in the opening-up of Central Africa' (PMM 253). Written in a straightforward unpretentious, narrative style, it gave readers their first realistic description of everyday life in west Africa, depicting without the censorious, patronizing contempt which so often has disfigured European accounts of Africa (DNB).- Some age-browning and offsetting of the plates otherwise a beautiful copy.

Extracted from the collection, Mariner's marvelous Magazine or wonders of the ocean, containing narratives of the most noted shipwrecks and disasters at sea. - A small group of East India Company ships set sail bound for the East Indies. Leaving the Thames estuary, and passing Margate, the weather subsided into a calm, and the flotilla was forced to anchor to save themselves from drifting on to the Goodwin Sands, just four miles off Ramsgate. Then a gale got up and the ships began dragging towards the sands despite heroic efforts by the crew and the ships ran aground off South Foreland, and began to sink into the sands. Forming a significant part of the cargo on the Admiral Gardner were 46 tons of coins struck by Matthew Boulton at Soho, comprising ten and twenty cash copper pieces, for use in the Company's trade in their Madras Presidency. The lost vessel was located by a local fisherman in 1984 and coins recovered from the wreck were offered for sale. - Rare popular edition. Huntress 153C.

121 WILLIAMS, John Brown. The New Zealand journal 1842-1844. Edited with an account of his life by Robert W. Kenny. Salem, Peabody Museum, 1956. Cloth. With folding map and 7 plates. XII,120 pp. € 35,00

'Except when Williams is obsessed with sin and punishment, his Journal makes entertaining and historically valuable reading for the picture it gives of a frontier society, an oboriginal society and the world in which both whites and Maoris lived. Williams appears as a somewhat chauvinistic Yankee, strongly anti-

British, and an ardent believer in using the United States Navy to further the commercial interests of her citizens'.
