CATALOGUE 140

480 SADAHIDE, Hashimoto. (Record of things seen and heard at the open port of Yokohama). (1862-65). 1 (of 6) volume.

Original wrappers. Album with 10 leaves with Japanese text, 1 coloured woodcut and 29 other woodcuts depicting foreigners. € 950,00

'While the pictures are fascinating, it is the text which, if read carefully, vividly conveys Sadahide's understanding that while peoples of the world may have skins of different colors, human nature is the same everywhere. The tone is both didactic and pro-foreign' (Meech-Pekarik, The world of the Meije print, p. 40-41). - Fine.

Contemporary half calf (extremities of spine sl. dam.). With portrait frontispiece and 5 hand-coloured aquatints. (8), 323 pp. € 675,00
First published in 1817; with the bookplate of Bob Luza. - 'The Alceste and the Lyra conveyed Lord Amherst's embassy to China, which was the second attempt by the British to open trade with China, after the first effort by Lord Macartney. The Alceste reached Rio de Janeiro in 1816, and then proceeded to the Cape of Good Hope. After a short visit there, Batavia was touched at in order to deliver dispatches for the evacuation of the country and reinstatement of Dutch control, after which the Alceste continued on to China. While the matters of the embassy were proceeding, the ships sailed on an expedition for the survey and exploration of the west coast of Korea and the Ryukyu Islands. In the course of this work a long visit was made to Okinawa. The people were very hospitable to the sailors and gave them a kindly, though careful, reception. On the return voyage, after taking Lord Amherst on board at Macao, Manilla was visited, and then, in Gaspar Strait off the coast of Sumatra, the Alceste struck a submerged reef and became a total loss. The crew and passengers reached the small adjacent island of Pulo Leat safely. Lord Amherst proceeded to Batavia to fetch help while the sailors fortified their island retreat, named Fort Maxwell after their captain. A long and vivid account is given of their experiences, of how they were attacked by Malay pirates, and of their final rescue. On their return voyage, St. Helena was visited, and an interesting account is given of an interview with Napoleon. Dr. M'Leod, the author of this account, was ship's surgeon on board the Alceste' (Hill p.407). - (Some foxing).

4to. Contemporary half calf. With 7 engraved plates (frontispiece missing). (6),280 pp. € 950,00
First Dutch edition. - Pinto (1509-1583), a Portuguese adventurer, embarked for India in 1537 desiring to try his fortunes in the East. He was shipwrecked on the island of Tanixumaa (Japan) in 1542 and thus was the first European to enter Japan. After years as trader and adventurer in South-east Asia, China, Indonesia and India, Pinto returned to Portugal. After arriving in 1558 he wrote his famous 'Peregrinations', published 30 years after his death in 1614. Pinto made four visits to Japan, he also gives first hand accounts of India, Abyssinia, Malacca, Sumatra, Java, Chine, Tartary etc. "It is, moreover, a classic record of the experiences and observations of one of the earliest Europeans to penetrate into the interior of oriental countries, which, in that era, were practically unknown." (Cox). Although many of his described adventures were too fantastic to be believed and earned him the sobriquet 'Prince of Lies', he was indeed the first known European to enter Japan. - Browned and waterstained but still a good reading copy of an important book.

Brown, a.o., 1704. Contemporary panelled calf (hinges weak but holding). With engraved folding map, engraved folding plate showing the 'Formosan Alphabet' (with tear), and 15 (of 16) engraved plates (margin of folding plate sl. dam.; plate 12 missing) showing costumes, money, buildings, boats etc. XIV,(56),327,(9) pp. € 1.500,00
First edition. - One of the most fantastic literary forgeries of all times. Psalmanazar (N.F.B. de Rodes ?), a native from the south of France, led the life of a adventurer. Being instructed by Jesuit tutors in the history and geography of Japan he pretended to be a native of Japan, under influence of chaplain William Innes, to render the story more plausible, this was changed into being a native of Formosa. In London he attracted at once popular interest. Psalmanazar invented his own 'Formosan' language etc., and he wrote his fictitious narration. What was not due to his own imagination he borrowed from the accounts of Varenius and Candidius. Doubt at once arose over the authenticity of his narrative, and after Innes was sent as chaplain-general to the English forces in Portugal, he felt incompetent to sustain his imposture unaided. (D.N.B.). - Slightly foxed, otherwise fine.

Mangkunegaran was a minor court in Surakarta (Indonesia), established in 1757 by the partition of the Sunanate. The court's armed forces, the Legiun Mangkunegaran, were reorganized by Daendels, making them one of the few significant indigenous military forces on Java in the late colonial period. In 1946 the Mangkunegaran was formally abolished, along with the Surakarta court, after it failed to support the Republic unequivocally, but its informal position improved due to its family connection with Tien Suharto, wife of the president. - A fine copy.

4 volumes. 8vo. Modern red cloth, spines lettered in gilt. With 2 maps and 44 plates and facsimiles. € 1.650,00
One of the most detailed and best monographs Dutch colonial history has at its disposal .. F. de Haan (1863-1938) for many years carefully examined the archives for anything that could be found on the Preanger during the time of the Company. His resulting four-volume Priangan .. is not only of importance for the district mentioned in the title. Anyone who is interested in the Company's history and role on Java should possess this book because of the rich quantity of material it provides. .. De Haan, when he was Keeper of the Records at Batavia, always tried to keep visitors out of the archives so that he could devote all his attention to his beloved Priangan. (Coolhaas p.54). Vol. I gives a survey of the history of Priangan and detailed biographical data concerning all those who were of any importance to it. Vol. II contains 50 appendices, reproductions of the most important documents from the archives and 23 'excursen' (special subjects). Vol. III and IV give a very detailed commentary on the survey in vol. I as well as 32 lists and tables. - Ex Bibl. Rob Nieuwenhuys. - A fine set.

Original embossed brown cloth, spine richly gilt. With tinted lithographed frontispiece by P.W.M. Trap. (8),215 pp. € 195,00
First edition published in 1860. - Van Hoëvell asked for a voluntary discharge because he had been branded as 'suspect' in the Dutch East Indies. He wrote a pamphlet dealing with these events, but also based one of his novellas on them. It is called 'The Suspects', written in 1858, and was included in his volume About life in the Indies (Uit het Indische leven, 1860). It is one of his best works, and has remained relevant to this day. At once recognizable is the pattern it describes of an authoritarian society (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.62).

First edition. - Franz Wilhelm Junghuhn (1809-1864) joined the Netherlands Indies Army as a medical officer in 1834. In 1845 he became a member of the Natural Sciences Commission. He made numerous excursions in Java, climbed all mountains and he inspected ca. 650 craters. The result of all his investigations is this great work on Java. His description of the flora is still unsurpassed. Junghuhn is an 'important scientist, author, draughtsman, philosopher and photographer, who can be considered one of the first to visualize the immense splendor of Indonesian nature' (Haks & Maris p.140). - (Atlas volume missing as usual). - A fine set.

Amsterdam, F. Günst, 1862.

Modern boards. 444 pp. € 125,00

The anonymous publication of Images of Light and Shadow from Java's interior, first published in 1854, created a lot of bad feeling which impeded but could not prevent its appearance in the Netherlands. In the Netherlands Indies, the book was what we would now call a best seller. Junghuhn's book was prohibited in Austria and in several German states and principalities because of its alleged 'denigrations and vilifications of Christianity' (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.69). - (Title-page damaged).

First published in 1897. - In his book Impressions of a newcomer it was obvious Van Maurik had appropriated all the Indies prejudices during his brief stay there: the imperfect speech of Eurasians amused him, and he portrayed the native Indonesians as a childlike people. He repeated all the club and barroom stories and larded them with his own banal humor. .. No wonder then that Justus van Maurik's trip had been a great succes about which people talked for years (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies, p.135).

First edition. - Johannes Oliver (1789-1858) was born in Utrecht and left for the Indies in 1817 where he became secretary of Muntinghe and Van Sevenhoven. In 1823 he was fired for excessive consumption of strong drink and was transferred to the colonial navy, where he became a scrivener. His work shows a thorough understanding of the Indies and its people. His books do not emphasize the European world but the autochthonous society instead and he attempts to come close to and understand the native born (Nieuwenhuys, Mirror of the Indies). - *Some foxing other-

First edition. - M.T.H. Perelaer (1831-1901) was a career officer in the Dutch East Indies. His curious novel 'purportedly tells the adventures of four deserters from the colonial army - two Swiss, a Belgian, and a native trooper - during their harrowing trek through the jungles of Borneo. The novel contains a great deal of information on the Dayaks, culled from Perelaer's scientific study Ethnographical description of the Dayaks, published in 1870. Perelaer's novel was published in a translation by Maurice Blok in the United States under the silly title Ran away from the Dutch or Borneo from South to North' (Beekman, Troubled pleasures, p.307). - (Map missing).

Wallace's (1823-1913) second, longest, and most significant expedition was to the relatively underexplored Malay Archipelago between 1854 and 1862. His journey took him first to Singapore and then Borneo, where he hunted and observed the orangutan (1855-1856). Heading east to the Moluccas group, he explored Amboyna and Ternate during 1857 and 1858. In 1858 Wallace traveled to Lombok and Bali in the Timor group, recognizing this group of islands as the boundary between the two primary continental influences dividing the natural history of the archipelago, the Indian sub-continent in the northwest, and Australia in the southeast. The remaining three years of Wallace's travels (1859-1862) took him east to the Papuan group, where he explored Macassar, the Aru Islands (where he studied the bird of paradise) then New Guinea. This was interspersed with return visits west to Ternate and Amboyna, and the Celebes group for the first time. He visited Sumatra before returning to England via Singapore (Speake, Encyclopedia, p.1264). This is a magnificent combination of interesting sketches of travel and vivid pictures of natural history.

4to. Modern vellum. With fine engraved frontispiece and 12 engraved/ etched plates, 7 signed by D. Bosboom. (8),96 € 1.850,00

Second and best Dutch edition, augmented with 3 folding plates. - ‘Shipwreck on a desert island, hunger, and cannibalism are the themes of Franz Janszoon van der Heiden’s tale describing the shipwreck of a VOC yacht off the coast of Bengal. According to Van der Heiden the Schelling was bound for Bengal from Batavia in October, 1661, when it ran aground during a storm and began to break up. Some of its crew escaped to a desert island where they struggled to stay alive for some time before building a rude raft with which they sailed to the mainland. Once on the mainland they were taken to a Mughal army camp and impressed into service. There is a brief description of the army and of the war they were fighting. Van der Heiden’s tale may well be fictitious. The crew of the Schelling seems altogether too irresponsible, some of their adventures too unrealistic; the descriptions of the island are so general, it could be anywhere, and there are some serious lapses and illogicalities in the story’ (Lach, Asia in the making of Europe, III, p.496). - One of the most well-known Dutch books of a disastrous voyage by the Dutch East India Company (VOC). - Some margins strengthened, few marginal stains, otherwise fine. - Scarce.
